

About the Roundtable

FAR (formerly known as the Finance and Administration Roundtable) is the area's only association dedicated exclusively to not-for-profit business leaders. The membership currently represents over 200 trade associations, professional societies, educational, charitable, and other not-for-profit organizations. Established in 1983 as the Washington Association Financial Management Roundtable, FAR provides an environment for not-for-profit professionals to network, exchange ideas, share information, and stay informed about the latest issues, trends and news affecting their organization.

In March, 2010, FAR was authorized by the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) to offer CPE credit for most of its programs.

"While the quality education that FAR delivers is invaluable to me, the primary benefit that I derive from FAR, that I will take with me long after my final FAR event, is the networking afforded to me, and the friends and relationships that I have developed over my 15 years of membership. Nowhere else in the DC area, but at FAR, is there a forum for networking with my peers in the Finance and Administration disciplines. And while I won't likely recall the financial trends of the past decade down the road, I will never forget the relationships I have built, and the impact that those who I have met at FAR have made in my life, and in our profession, and in the industries and interests they serve. What a life-long benefit, for such an affordable annual investment!!" Craig Silverio CAE, Packaging Machinery
